

Crissy Ingram has been with the National Association of Women in Construction since January 2012. She earned her Certified Association Executive designation in December 2020. Crissy has three daughters, and has raised them with the knowledge that they can be and do anything! The mission and values of NAWIC are near and dear to her, and she is passionate about advancing the Association and the women within it.