

Daniel White is a Senior Organizational Development Consultant, assisting organizations with strategic planning, leadership development, succession planning, and governance. He has worked with a wide range of industries, from construction to governmental organizations. He has also worked internationally, consulting with organizations in Bolivia, Guatemala, and Ghana.

Prior to advising organizations, Daniel worked in not-for-profit operations, directing projects with clients such as the US Department of State and the United Nations. He has been published in multiple national publications, including Fast Company and several academic journals, and he has presented at several national conferences.

Daniel is also the Assistant Director of the Kansas Family Business Forum. He is a certified Family Business Advisor and facilitator of Appreciation at Work™ and of the Emotional and Social Competency Inventory.

A Wichita native, Daniel received a bachelor's degree in communications from Wheaton College and a master's degree in organizational development from Friends University.